NEWTON ALONZO WELLS, M. P., Professor of Architectural Decoration, Emeritus, born in Lisbon, New York, 1852, died in Algiers, January 16, 1923. During the twenty years as a member of the faculty he was enthusiastic and energetic; he gave generously of his time and talents; he made contributions to his field of work; and he did much outside of his regular duties to help the students to a better understanding of their work. He was an artist, a teacher, a student, and he leaves behind many works of his hand in the way of murals, portraits and mosaics, as a reminder of his life among us.

The Spanish Fete

The Architectural Fete of 1923 was held in Spanish California. Ricker Library was transformed into the moonlit, trellised patio of an old Spanish hacienda surrounded by tile-roofed, stuccoed buildings which were given life and interest by lighted iron-grilled windows and gay canopied balconies. The corridors presented the spectacle of crowded streets of a Spanish town with an arch over the street here, a balcony overhanging the road there, an iron lantern yonder. Room 400 at the end of the street became a Spanish garden with a quaint, colorful, tiled well, imported from an old Moorish garden of Seville, at its center. From this well was dispensed by Spanish pages, a draught the like of which Ponce de Leon sought in his travels to the New World.

To this fete came all the countryside. Spanish soldiers and priests, the Colonial Governor and suite, Spanish sailors, pirates and buccaneers, vaqueros from the great ranchos, Indian neophytes from the missions, the rancheros and their families. All mingled under the festooned trellises dancing to the lilting Spanish fandangos or tripped gaily to the sprightly castineted melodies furnished by the swarthy orchestra. Cascarones were freely broken over many heads while the sweetness of the perfume dropped upon the brows of popular favorites, completed the spell. All present voted the fete of 1923 a great success.

The tower of the Schiller Building, Chicago, originally named the German Opera House. The auditorium is now used as the Garrick Theatre. Built 1891,—thirty-one years ago; Adler and Sullivan (Louis H.), Architects.

The entire facing and trim is unglazed Northwestern terra cotta of light gray color. The fine enrichment of the tower is surpassed in the exquisite detail of the lower stories.
